

Medical and ADL Indications for the Motion Concepts Standing System

When should a power standing system be considered for medical reasons?

1. To prevent or reduce hip, knee and plantar flexion contractures and maintain joint range of motion
2. Reduce the effects of spasticity in the lower extremities
3. To reduce the incidence of urinary tract infection, urinary calculi and promote good renal function
4. To increase and/or maintain bone mineral density to help prevent pathological fractures.
5. To reduce the incidence of upper respiratory infection and maximizing cough
6. To help with pain management
7. To assist in swallowing, digestion and elimination

When should a power standing system be considered for ADL reasons?

1. To reduce the hours of care, needed by care givers and provide them with a greater degree of safety
2. To add is education and employment opportunities
3. To assist in activities in the community, such as shopping
4. For social interaction, play, recreation, leisure activities and equal viewing access in public.
5. To enable the individual to function more independently and lead a more fulfilled life

